The Czar Says He Will Have War or Penjdeh and the Soudkher

Pass.

General Obrutcheff Urges the Emperor to Strike the Decisive Blow

at Once.

The British Government Disturbed by an Adverse Vote in the House of Commons.

CRUCIAL TO WAR.

The Czar Will not Hasten but Will not Yield Afghanistan.

St. Petersburg, April 25.—The emperor passed four hours yesterday with General Obrutcheff, chief of staff, and several English officers studying the war maps of the Afghan frontier. General Obrutcheff regards war as inevitable, and urges immediate mobilization, and that not a moment should be lost in pushing on to Herat and Candahar. General Obrutcheff's increasing influence over the czar is believed here to be very significant.

Gen. Obrutcheff said to the czar: "Now is the moment for Russia to strike, Lumsden's relief has utterly destroyed England's prestige among Afghans, who, I can assure your majesty, are ready to revolt against the ameer; besides, Persia is prepared secretly to help us and to do so the moment we strike the first blow. All these advantages will be lost by delay."

The czar replied: "You are too hasty. I still hope war may be averted, but come what will I never shall consent to give up Penjdeh nor the Soudkher pass."

War preparations continue at Moscow and troops hasten south. General Gourko, of Poland, has been ordered to prepare to command the Russian troops in India and has 70,000 men ready for battle. Stationary torpedo boats are being placed outside all the Baltic forts. The Russians are compelling unfriendly Afghans to build roads.

ALL FOR INDIA.

LONDON, April 25.—The British transports at Woolwich have been ordered to load, until otherwise instructed, all their war stores for India instead of Soudkher. The government has ordered the immediate construction of forty gun boats.

AT LONDON.

LONDON, April 25.—The cabinet council is now sitting. The house of commons defeated the government in a vote of credit, causing great excitement. The Afghan trouble has not improved.

CONSOLS.

LONDON, April 25.—12:30 p. m.—Consols opened at 95; and are now 94 1/2-16. Russian securities, 86.

LAST NIGHTS DISASTERS.

By Cable to THE SENTINEL.
LONDON, April 24.—In the house of lords this afternoon the Egyptian loan bill passed in the committee without amendment. In the lobby of the house of commons this afternoon, it was said that Mr. Gladstone, pale and agitated, made an almost pathetic appeal to the members of parliament not to press upon the government the question concerning the situation in Egypt, or the condition of the correspondence with Russia upon the Afghan boundary and the collision of the Russian and Afghan troops. Mr. Gladstone, it was claimed, was evidently much disturbed by the news from Cairo this morning of the rupture by France of her relations with Egypt.

A telegram from Alexandria to the Exchange Telegraph company states that the French consul general has informed the Khedive and Nubar Pasha, the Egyptian foreign minister, that his instructions suspend official relations with the government of Egypt; also that the consul general has left Cairo for Alexandria to embark for Europe.

Rt Hon J. M. Nash, the present attorney general of Ireland, has been appointed lord chancellor of Ireland to fill the place made vacant by the death of Sir Edward Sullivan on the 13th inst.

In reply to the question whether the government would seek the offices of friendly power before deciding to go to war with Russia, Gladstone said that while the government had never said anything to prejudice this plan, he deemed it improper to make declarations to Russia through parliament.

A Times special from Cairo says, M. Faillardier has broken official relations with Egypt.

The government has decided to increase the number of armed cruisers to twenty and has chartered the steamers Coptic and Alaska of the Pacific company.

BELFAST, April 24.—The prince and princess of Wales landed today. Notwithstanding the rain that was falling steadily, vast crowds assembled to welcome the visitors.

EGYPT.

ALEXANDRIA, April 24.—The French newspaper, Courier, publishes a dispatch saying, "El Mahdi's men attacked and defeated the Italian forces near Mansourah. The Italian consul here has no knowledge of the affair."

Cairo, April 24.—The opinion is expressed here that France and Russia are concerting against England.

The French flag at the consulate has been hauled down.

WASHINGTON.

Owing to the National Capital—A list of appointments.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The trial of Dickson opened at 9 o'clock and the introduction of testimony was resumed.

Ex-United States Marshal Henry, being recalled, described the conversation he had with Attorney-General Brewster during the progress of the star route proceedings. The attorney-general found fault with the selection of two witnesses. He said to the witness that the whole country would hold him (witness) responsible if the accused were not convicted. The witness indignantly denied and asserted that his hands were clean and his office was clean. The district attorney was proceeding to question the witness when the counsel for the defense arose to object. The court said that many things had been put in as testimony to which he ought to have objected. The case had assumed the aspect of a trial of the late attorney-general. Why this matter should come in at this late day he could not understand. The name of the late attorney-general had been dragged in. "The late attorney-general must hold you" (addressing District Attorney Worthington) "responsible for all this scandal that has been heaped upon his head."

Mr. Worthington thought this unjust in as much as the attorney-general's name had been first introduced by the counsel for the defense and by the witness. The court said he would have ruled out Brewster's testimony if he could have foreseen that this was to be used for the purpose of heaping scandal upon the head of the late attorney-general. It was an outrage.

Ex-Special Attorney W. W. Ker was sworn and described a conversation between himself and Ex-District Attorney Corkhill, which took place a day or two after the grand jury had ignored the first indictment against Dickson. The witness took the district attorney to task for permitting the grand jury to call before them persons indiscriminately. Mr. Corkhill said that the grand jury had no right to have anybody before the grand jury except the witnesses for the state, and he told the district attorney that the Dickson bill had been ignored because of his (Corkhill's) carelessness and negligence. He advised Corkhill to bring the Dickson case before the grand jury anew, and see to it that only witnesses for the government were allowed to appear, and adding that if the case were lost through his (Corkhill's) neglect the attorney-general would hold the latter responsible. Mr. Corkhill promised to take the course suggested.

"Now we have another defendant," said the court—sotto voce.

Questioned by the counsel for the defense, the witness said he had introduced an electrician from Philadelphia to Mr. Dickson, the former representing an underground system for electric conductors and Mr. Dickson, being president of an electric light company. Mr. Ker said to Dickson in substance that it would be to the advantage of his company to secure the use of the underground system.

"Did you think it proper to introduce a thing of this kind to the foreman of a jury in a case which you were counsel?"

"Well, sir, I do not know as a thing there is anything improper about it?" Brewster Cameron was recalled and contradicted certain statements made by the witness.

Kennedy, counsel for the government, suggested to the court that the case be adjourned until Monday to give ex-Attorney Brewster an opportunity to appear in his own vindication if he chose to do so.

The court said it was customary to adjourn over from Friday until Monday. The case was thereupon adjourned until next week.

MUSIC AND SONG.

A Glimpse of the Approaching State Sengerfest and the Gentlemen Who Promote it.

The Program of the Season.

The people of Fort Wayne are impatient and restless, a feeling of confinement and discontent pervades the community, and, like caged birds, they pump for each and every opportunity to fly from home. First, the delusive beauties of Cincinnati are presented and an excursion to that city is agreed upon. Then half rates to Chicago take the town by storm, and finally a few dozen excursions to "suburban resorts" are planned and prosecuted with all the cunning printers' ink can portray. The ingenuity and genius of a varied people is constantly employed devising some scheme to drain the purse of the populace, and it is safe to wager that the bulk of the money goes to foreign banks. These frivolities do not prosper forever, nor do people always remain blind to the fact that "there is no place like home, be it ever so humble." The inquiry stop in this direction is the forthcoming state Sengerfest to be held in this city from June 21 to 26 inclusive. In 1870 this great festival was held at Evansville, in 1877 at Tell City, in 1878 at New Albany, in 1879 at Terre Haute, in 1880 at Lafayette, in 1882 at Evansville and in 1883 at Indianapolis. Each of these fests attracted immense throngs and thousands of people from every part of the state participated in or listened to the music and song. The importance of the forthcoming Sengerfest can be properly realized when it is known that the local managers have engaged Fannie Louise Kellogg, Charles Webber, Monsieur Babcock and Sherwood, the famous Boston pianist. These artists will be supported by a mixed chorus of the best voices in the city, and besides the following singing societies have signed their intention to be present to participate in the greatest musical event in the history of Northern Indiana: The Arion society, Fort Wayne; Sengerbund, Fort Wayne; Mannerchor, Columbus, Ind.; Liederkreis, Richmond; Liederkreis, Mt. Vernon; Sengerbund, Aurora; Liederkreis, Evansville; Liedertafel, Lawrenceburg; Mannerchor, Tell City; Concordia, Lafayette; Liederkreis, Indianapolis; Mannerchor, New Albany; Mannerchor, South Bend, and the Peru singing society.

This movement has behind it some of the best citizens of Fort Wayne. They appreciate what it is to make this city attractive and realize the importance of an occasion that will unquestionably summon thousands of strangers to our midst. First comes the central committee, composed and officered as follows: President, Mayor C. A. Zollinger; vice presidents, Louis Griebel and Henry C. Berghoff; treasurer, C. Hoffman; secretary, P. J. Grazier; financial secretary, Otto Herbat; trustees, Christ Wenninghoff, Fred Roth and Wm. Hahn.

The committee on finance consists of the following prominent business men: Charles F. Muhler, Charles McCulloch, John Mohr, jr., R. J. Fisher, C. Hettler, J. W. Jacobs, H. Heine, J. H. Bass, Louis Fox, C. Wenninghoff, J. G. Strodel, J. M. Coombs, Charles Munson, Andrew F. Glutting, Montgomery Hamilton, R. C. Bell, C. Enteman, E. F. Halberkorn, C. Trenkly, H. Michael, J. M. Kane, J. M. Riedmiller, F. Michael, J. B. Boush, F. Beach, J. D. Bond, Herman Berghoff, Joseph A. M. Storm, G. Haller, H. C. Graft, J. Wessel, jr., A. Friend and F. C. Boltz.

The officers of the committee on finance are: President, C. F. Muhler; secretary, Christ Enteman; treasurer, F. Beach. The executive committee of the committee on finance are: Charles McCulloch, Charles Munson, F. Beach, H. C. Graft, John Mohr, jr., Montgomery Hamilton, C. Enteman, C. F. Muhler and J. M. Kane.

The committee on music is: Charles McCulloch, John Mohr, jr., Charles F. W. Meyer, W. F. Heald, E. M. Noll, Albert Joest, F. J. Reineke, Philip Kuntz, E. M. Wollank, J. B. Young, J. J. Weber, A. J. Lang, Charles L. Olds, R. C. Bell, W. D. Page, August Brader, E. Yarnelle, Charles H. Warden, J. H. Rugsma, A. Schulte, E. Gerberding, Willis D. Meier and J. Flank.

Prof. Otto Schmidt will be the principal leader of the great festival and will superintend all the arrangements of music.

The season will consist of three grand evening concerts and two matinees. Governor Isaac P. Gray will open the Sengerfest on the evening of June 21. Then will follow an ovation to the singers from abroad, and the concert proper opens with all the principal societies and chorists in the cast.

On the second day, June 24, will occur a matinee and concert and at each performance 400 voices will be heard.

On the last day, June 25, occurs likewise a matinee and concert on a different program and again the great chorus will blend in sweet melody with a band of fifty pieces. This, in brief, outlines the program and gives an idea of the magnitude of the greatest musical event known to Fort Wayne.

The promoters have arranged for cheap railroad transportation, but have not yet decided where the concert shall be held, as the Masonic Temple, the Princess rink and the new M. F. college hall offer rival advantages.

The festival will cost $5,000. This sum it is expected the receipts of the five performances will double, but in the meantime the people of Fort Wayne will be asked to pledge that amount, not that it is expected to cost them a penny in that way, but to add solidity and stability to the grandest musical enterprise ever conceived here. The Sengerfest, he speaks for this great Sengerfest the support and good will of the business men, whom more than any other class it will benefit.

STRIKE ON THE WABASH.

The Employees Here Notify the Company of an Intention to Shutting Down the Shops.

The Wabash workmen held a monster meeting at Driscoll's hall this morning at 2 o'clock they decided to strike. The cause of the trouble is the violation of the agreement made by the company not to close the shops. The men are peaceable and do not prevent any person from working. At 3 o'clock they were striving to induce trainmen to peacefully abandon all freight trains with every prospect of success. The men strongly avow they will violate no law, but exercise their right to quit work.

SETTLED.

At 4 o'clock a dispatch came to the Knights of Labor, saying, "Everything settled. Start work Monday morning. Master Mechanic Jacob Johann will send particulars." This ends the strike, and a committee is notifying Master Mechanic Barnes.

The following are the casualties as far as known: Ninth battalion, private Ferguson, killed; Sergeant Macklin, killed; private Jarvis, slightly wounded; private Conis, slightly wounded. About twenty other soldiers are wounded.

Later 12:30 p. m. Several others have been wounded, but are not brought in yet. One party of insurgents were just dislodged. The artillery is still shelling the rebels out of the ravine. Several Indian ponies have been captured. The insurgent losses are not yet known. The Indians set the prairie on fire, but a heavy hail storm extinguished the flames.

WINNEPEG, April 24.—Hutchinson's advance relief command of mounted police has reached Battleford. The Indians are leaving.

Justice Beats Mob Law.

TRINIDAD, Col., April 24.—The execution of E. C. Belknap for the murder of Knowles at Somerville, in 1883, took place here today in the presence of a large crowd of people. This is the first legal execution that has taken place in this country, though six men suffered death at different times during the last twelve years at the hands of mobs.

Killed His Mistress.

AN INGVY SORF.

Disturb General Grant's Rest Again Last Night.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.
NEW YORK, April 25.—General Grant did not get settled for the night until about 1 o'clock this morning. He received five minims of morphine, and after 1 o'clock slept at intervals. The sore at the base of the tongue appeared angry last night and the post-sore throat may have been the result, but when his throat was examined there were more favorable indications than yesterday.

HE WILL LIVE THROUGH THE SUMMER.

Dr. Douglass said the general had passed a very quiet night, though his sleep was somewhat broken, but so far as the physical condition of General Grant is concerned, he might with safety be removed to the mountains or seaside tomorrow, but no excursions will occur until the first of July. That the general will survive the summer is the belief of those in a position to know.

DID NOT RIDE.

NEW YORK, April 25.—General Grant did not take his usual carriage ride today. He had passed an uncomfortable night, and the weather was considered too cold for him to venture out.

DANCING.

A Short Step From the Ball-room to the Grave.

An Old Lady Trying to Look Young by Powder and Paint.

I Laugh, Even in Church, When I See Her Coming.

Dr. Talmage is now preaching at the Brooklyn Tabernacle a brief series of Sabbath morning sermons on "Recreations, good and bad." His subject last Sabbath morning was, "Does dancing occupy too much place in modern society?" He expounded the third chapter of Ecclesiastes, setting forth that there is a time to weep and a time to laugh, and that a smile may be as sacred as a tear. The opening hymn was:

"He smeth me: Oh, blessed thought!
Words with heavenly comfort brought."

The text of the sermon was from Matthew xiv. 6: "When Herod's birthday was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them and pleased Herod."

Following is the sermon in full:

It is the anniversary of Herod's birthday. The palace is lighted. The highways leading thereto blaze with the pomp of invited guests. Lords, captains, merchant princes, and the mightiest men of the realm are on the way to mingle in the festivities. The tables are filled with all the luxuries that the royal purveyors can gather—spiced wines, and fruits, and rare meats. The guests, white robed, anointed and perfumed take their places. Music! The jeds evoke roars of laughter. Riddha are propounded. Repartee indulged. Toasts drunk. The brain beggled. Wit gives place to uproar and blasphemy. And yet they are not satisfied. Turn on more light. Give us more music. Sound the trumpet.
Clear the floor for the dance. Bring in Salome, the graceful and accomplished princess.

The doors are opened and in bounds the dancer. Stand back, and give plenty of room for the gyrations. The lords are enchanted. They never saw such poetry of motion. Their souls whirl in the reel and bound with the bounding feet. Herod forgets crown and throne—everything but the fascination of Salome. The magnificence of his realm is as nothing compared with that which now whirls before him on tip-toe. His heart is in transport with Salome, as her arms are now tossed in the air, and now placed skim-bling. He aways with every motion of the enchanted. He thrills with the quick pulsation of her feet, and is bewitched with the posturing attitudes that the never saw before, in a moment exchanged for others just as amazing. He sits in silence before the whirling, bounding, leaping, flashing wonder. And when the dance stops, and the tinkling cymbals pause, and the long, loud plaudits that shook the palace with their thunders had abated, the entranced monarch swears unto the princely performer: "Whosoever thou shalt ask of me I will give it to thee, to the half of my kingdom."

Now there was in prison a minister by the name of John the Baptist, who had made much trouble by his honest preaching. He had denounced the sins of the king and had brought down upon himself the wrath of the females of the royal family. At the instigation of her mother, Salome took advantage of the king's extravagant promise, and demands the head of John the Baptist on a dinner plate. There is a sound of heavy feet and clatter of swords outside of the palace. Swing back the door. The executioners are returning from their awful errand. They hand a platter to Salome.
What is on that platter? A new tankard of wine to smother the mirth of the lords?
No! It is colder than wine and cooler.
It is the ghastly, bleeding head of John the Baptist. Its locks dabbled in gore.
Its eyes set in the death stare.
The distress of the last agony in the features. That fascinating form that just now swayed so gracefully in the dance, bends over the horrid burden without a shudder. She glows over the blood; and just as the maid of your hon could glow, bearing out on a tray the empty glasses of the evening's entertainment, so she carried out on a platter the discovered head of that good man, while all the banqueters shouted, and thought it a grand joke that in such a brief and easy way they had freed themselves from such a plain spoken, troublesome minister. What could be more innocent than a birthday festival? All the kings from the time of Pharaoh had celebrated such days, and why not Herod?
It was right that the palace should be lighted, and that the cymbals should clap, and that the royal guests should go to a banquet, but before the rioting and was all that closed the scene of that day every pure nature revolts.

DANCING OCCUPIES TOO LARGE A PLACE.

I am not going at this time to discuss the old question: Is dancing right or wrong? But does dancing occupy too much place in modern society? and in my remarks I hope to carry with me the conviction of all thoughtful people.

Whatever you may think of the amusement, you must admit that from some circles it has crowded out all opportunity for intelligent conversation, and made the condition of those who do not dance, either because they do not know how or are not in sufficient health to endure it, or because they must conscientiously decline, very uncomfortable. You must admit also that with many it has ceased to be a recreation and become a disposition. With many it has become such an over-fatigue that you can understand the bewilderment of an educated Chinaman, who, standing in a brilliant house where for many hours the dance had been going on asked the wealthy proprietor, "Why do you not let your servants do that for you?" Furthermore, it will be admitted by all reasonable people that, whatever they may think of the old-fashioned square dance and many of the processional rumps, in which I can see no evil, the round dance is administrative of harm, and deserves to be banished out of respectable circles. I am by natural temperament and religious theory utterly opposed to the position of those who are horried at every demonstration of mirth and playfulness in social life, and who seem to think that everything decent and immoral depends upon the style in which people carry their feet. On the other hand, I can see nothing but ruin, moral and physical, in the dissipations of the ball-room, which has deplored thousands of young men and women of all that gives dignity to character or usefulness to life.

Dancing has been styled "the graceful movement of the body, adjusted by art, to the measures or tune of instruments, or of the voice." All nations have danced. The ancients thought the practice to the Laedemonians; but whatever be its origin, all climes have adopted it.

In other days there were feasts, dances, and funeral dances, and military dances, and industrial dances, and bacchanalian dances. Queens and lords have awayed to and fro in their gardens, and the rough men of the back woods in this way have raised up the echo of the forest.
There seems to be something in lively and coherent sounds to evoke the movement of hand and foot, whether cultured or uncultured. Men passing the street, unconsciously keep step to the music of the band, and christians in church unconsciously find themselves keeping time with their feet, while their soul is uplifted by some great harmony. Not only is this true, in cultured life, but the red men of Oregon have their scalp dances, and green corn dances, and war dances.

The ancient fathers, aroused by the indecent dances of those days, gave emphatic evidence against any participation in the dance. St. Chrysostom says: "The feet were not made for dancing, but to walk modestly, not to leap immoderately, like camels." One of the dogmas of the ancient church read: "A dance is the devil's possession; and he that entereth into a dance entereth into his possession.
The devil is the gate to the middle to the end of the dance. As many passers as a man makes in dancing, so many passes doth he make in hell." Elsewhere these old dogmas declare: "The woman that singeth in the dance is the princess of the devil; and those that answer are the clerks; and the beholders are his friends; and the music are his bellows; and the fiddlers are the ministers of the devil; for, as when hogs are strayed, if the hogherd call one, all assemble together, so the devil calleth one woman to sing in a dance, or to play on some instrument, and presently all the dancers gather together." This wholesale and discriminate denunciation grew out of the utter disrespect of those ancient plays. So great at one time was the offense to all decency that the Roman senate decreed the expulsion of all dancers and dancing masters from Rome.

IN THE LIGHT OF REASON.

Yet we are not to discuss the customs of that day, but the customs of the present. We cannot let the fathers decide the question for us. Our reason, enlightened by the Bible, shall be the standard. I am not ready to excommunicate all those who lift their feet beyond a certain height. I would not visit our youth with a rigor of criticism that would put out all their ardor of soul. I do not believe that all the inhabitants of Wales who used to step to the sound of the rustic pibroch, went down to ruin.
I would give to all of our youth the right to romp and play. (God forbid it or he would not have discharged our natures with such exuberance. If a mother's hands with her children, and while the eldest strikes the keys, fill all the house with the sound of agile feet, I see no harm. If a few friends gathered in a happy circle, exclaiming and reviving the room to the sound of the piano well played, I see no harm.
If a company of people, all of whom are known to the host and hostess as reputable, move around the room to the sound of musical instruments, I can see no harm. I for a long while tried to see in it a harm, but I never could, and I probably never will. I would to that men kept young for a greater length of time. Never since my school-day days have I loved so well as now the bilious of life. What if we have felt heavy burdens, and suffered a multitude of hard knocks, is it any reason why we should stand in the path of those who, untried by life's misfortune, are exhilarated and full of glee?

God bless the young! They will have to live many a day if they want to hear me say one word to dampen their ardor, or clip their wings, or to throw a cloud upon their life by telling them that it is hard, and dark, and doleful. It is no such thing. You will meet with many a trial; but, speaking from my own experience, let me tell you that you will be treated a great deal better than you deserve. Let us not grudge the young their joy. As we go further on in life let us go with the remembrance that we have had our gleeful days. When old age frosts our locks and stiffens our limbs, let us not block up the way, but say: "We had our good times; now let others have theirs." As our children come on let us cheerfully give them our places. How glad I will be to give them everything—my house, my looks, my place in society, my heritage! By the time we get old we will have had our way long enough. Then let our children come on and we'll have their way. For thirty, forty or fifty years, we have been drinking from the cup of life, and we ought not to complain if called to pass the cup along and let others take a drink.

But, while we have a right to the enjoyments of life, we never will countenance sinful indulgences. I heretofore a group of what might be called the dissipations of the ball-room. In some communities these dissipations continue all the year, while they do the chief work in summer at the watering places, and, therefore, the subject has wide application. They saw an awful scythe of death. Are we to stand idly by and let the work go on but in the rebuke we tread upon the long trail of some popular vanity? The whirlpool of the ballroom drags down the life, the beauty and the moral worth of our cities. In whirlwind of imported silks goes out the life of many good families. Bodies and souls innumerable are annually consumed in this conflagration of ribbons.
This style of dissipation is the abettor of pride, the instigator of jealousy, the sacrificial alter of health, the defiler of soul, the avenue of lust, and the curse of the town.
The tread of this wild, intoxicating heated midnight dance jars all the moral hearth stones of the city. The physical ruin is evident. What will become of those who work all day and dance all night? A few years will turn them out nervous, exhausted imbeciles. Those who have given up their midnight to spiced wines and hot suppers, and ride home through winter's cold, unwrapped from the elements, will at last be recognized suicides.

DISEASES OF THE BALL-ROOM.

There is but a short step from the ballroom to the graveyard. There are consumptions and fierce neuralgias close on the track. And that glittering maze of ball room splendor disease stand right and left and balance and chain. A sepulcher breath floats up amid the perfume, and the froth of death's lip bubbles up in the champagne. Many of the brightest homes are being sacrificed. There are families that have actually quit keeping house and gone to boarding, that they may give themselves more exclusively to the higher duties of the ballroom. Mothers and daughters, fathers and sons, finding their highest enjoyment in the dance, bid farewell to books, to quiet culture, to all the amenities of home. The father, will, after a while go down into lower dissipations. The son will be tossed about in society, a non-entity. The daughter will elope with a French dancing master. The mother, still trying to stay in the gutter, and by every art trying to keep the color in her cheek and the wrinkles off her brow, attempting without any success all the arts of the tell,—and old flirt, a poor miserable butterfly without any wings.

If anything on earth is beautiful to my eyes it is an aged woman; her hair floating back over the wrinkled brow, not frosted, but white with the blossoms of the tree of life; her voice tender with past memories, and her face a benediction. The children pull at grandmother's dress as she passes through the room; almost pull her down in her weakness; yet she has nothing but a cake or a candy, or a kind word for the little darlings. When she goes away from us there is a shadow on the table, a shadow on the hearth, and a shadow in the dwelling. But if anything on earth is disastrous to look at, it is an old woman shaming of being old. What with artificial appliances, she is too much for my gratitude. I laugh, even in church, when I see her coming. One of the worst looking birds I know of is a peacock after it has lost its feathers. I would not give one lock of my mother's gray hair for fifty thousand such caricatures of old age.
The first time you find the faithful disciple of the ball-room diligently engaged and happy in the duties of the home circle, send me word, for I would give a great way to see such a phenomenon.
These creatures have no home. Their children unashamed. Then furniture undusted. Their cups clatter disorderly.
The house a scene of confusion, misrule cheerlessness and dirt. One would think you might discover, even amid the withered of the ball-room, the sickening odors of the unwept, unventilated, unseen domestic apartments.

Three dissipations extinguish all love of usefulness. How could you expect one to be interested in the alleviations of the world's misery while there is a question to be decided about the size of a glove or the shade of a garment? How many of these men and women of the ball-room visit the poor or help dress the wounds of a returned soldier in the hospital? When did the world ever see a perpetual dancer distributing tracts?
Such persons are turned in upon themselves. And is a very poor pasture!

This gilded sphere is utterly bad, warping to intellect and soul. This constant study of little things; this harassing anxiety about dress; this talk of fashionable infinitesimals; this group that simper and look askance at the mirrors, and wonder, with infinity of interest, "how that one geranium leaf does look;" this shriveling up of man's moral dignity until it is no more observable with the naked eye; this taking of a woman's heart, that God meant should be filled with all amenities, and compressing it until all the fragrance, and simplicity, and artlessness are squeezed out of it; this inquisition of a small shoe; this wrapping up of mind and heart in a ruff; this tumbling down of a soul that God meant for great upliftings. I prophesy the spiritual ruin of all participants in this rivalry. Have the white, polished, glittering boards ever been the road to heaven? Who, at the flash of those chandeliers, hath kindled a torch for eternity? From the table spread at the close of that excited and bewitched scene, who went home to his prayer?

To many, alas! this life is a magnetable ball. Yet, at such entertainments gentlemen and ladies appear in the dress of kings or queens, mountain bandits or clowns, and at the close of the dance throw off their disguises; so many all through life move in mask. Across the floor they trip merrily. The lights sparkle along the wall or drop from the ceiling—a very cohort of fire. The feet bound. Genuined hands, stretched out, clasp genuined hands. Dancing feet respond to dancing feet. Gleaming brow bends low to gleaming brow. On with the dance! Flash and hustle and laughter, and immeasurable merry-making! But the languor of death comes over the limbs and blurs the sight.
Lights lower! Floor hollow with sepulchral echo! Music saddens into a wail.
Lights lower. The maskers can hardly now be seen. Flowers exchange their fragrance for a sickening odor, such as comes from garlands that have lain in vents of cemeteries. Lights lower!
Mists fill the room. Glasses rattle as though shaken by sullen thunder. Light seems caught among the curtains. Scarf falls from the shoulder of beauty—a shroud! Over the slippery boards in dance of death glide jealousies, disappointments, lust, despair. Fern leaves and withered garlands only half hide the diabolical feet. The stench of smoking lamp-wicks almost quenched. Choking damps. Chilliness. Feet still. Hands folded. Eyes shut. Voices hushed.
Lights out!

How to Live on a Dime a Day.

Some so-called scientists are trying to show how this can be done. But you can't live very well on so little money.
That sort of economy is poor business, and generally results in dyspepsia. A hearty and a sound digestion enable people to earn enough to good square meals.
If digestion is poor, take Brown's Iron Bitters, which will make it right. Mr.
A. S. Holmes, Clinton, Iowa, says, "I found great relief from dyspepsia by using Brown's Iron Bitters."

Scientists hold seventeen distinct theories as to the cause of earthquakes.

Three Reasons

Why every one needs and should take Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring:

1st. Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2nd. Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

3d. Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a greater amount of good now than at any other time. Take it now.

ANALYST TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays a pain relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

CATARH

Diseases Tending to Consumption, Symptoms, Effects, Treatment and Cure.

Dr. Nicholls

Robinson House,
Fort Wayne, Ind.

Among the list of chronic diseases which affect the human frame Catarrh is the most prevalent, most offensive and most productive of discomfort; and of a variety of distressing and dangerous complications.

Its earliest and most prominent symptom is a discharge from the head, varying in its nature in different cases, and even in the same individuals at different times. It may be a thin, colorless, or fluid or a glary, starch-like substance.
Generally, however, it is a thick purulent or touch-purulent matter, either ash color, greenish yellow or a deep green tint, occasionally streaked or streaked with blood. So copious and offensive is the discharge in many cases that the patients express their belief that their heads are one mass of corruption.

"HAWKING."

Most of the discharge passes backward, either dropping into the throat, or collecting as a tough, viscid, tenacious plug, behind and above the soft palate in the passage between the throat and the head. Its lodgment embarrasses respiration, and creates a constant and almost insupportable desire to relieve the discomfort by drawing the offensive substance into the throat by a loud insuffla-tion through the nose, so as then to be able to eject by a disagreeable "hawking."

OFFENSIVE BREATH.

In the more advanced stages the discharges are generally of an offensive odor, causing great annoyance to one's friends and to the patient himself, while his sense of smell remains. This annoyance from the odor becomes almost beyond endurance, more especially when the disease assumes the form of ozema, and the delicate bones of the nose become diseased.

DEFORMITY OF THE NOSE

In neglected cases, when the bones of the nose become diseased, not only is the offensiveness of the breath greatly increased, but there is a liability to serious personal deformities, among which is the flattening of the nose.

FATAL EFFECTS OF CA-TARRH.

The swallowing of catarrhal secretions deranges the functions of the stomach, causing indigestion, loss of appetite and health. Debility, deafness, paleness, lassitude, headache and disturbance of mind soon follow. In some instances the mental affection is one of irritability, the patient being unduly annoyed by all the little perplexities of life. In others the prominent feeling is that of melancholy and depression of spirits, when the invalid can see no hope in the future for himself or his affairs.

CONSUMPTION and DEATH

Catarrh affections unchecked by treatment are prone to extend, by continuity of surface along the natural air passages to the substance of the lungs, thus causing consumption and death. In this connection it should also be remembered that the air which enters the lungs of a catarrhal patient is, every breath of it, poisoned by exhalations from the foul secretions of the diseased surface. By such air the blood cannot be properly purified and made fit to impart healthy vigor in its unending circuit to all and every part of the animal mechanism.
One would suppose that this consideration alone would be sufficient to induce every person thus afflicted to make early application for relief.

TREATMENT AND CURE.

By the system of treatment which Dr.
Nicholls has adopted and pursued for years with uniform success, a complete and permanent cure of this repulsive disorder can be effected. This he has demonstrated in thousands of cases, representing the disease in every form and all its various stages of development.
His applications are made to reach the diseased parts in the most direct and positive manner, instantaneously penetrating every cell and cavity of the head communicating with the nostrils, and subjecting every portion of the membrane to the healing action of the remedy employed, with the most beneficial results, and without causing the least pain or unpleasant sensation.

So effective is this plan of medication that a single application is generally productive of decided relief. The affected areas are thoroughly cleansed from corrupted morbid matter, the offensive smell is removed, and relief from other troublesome symptoms is almost immediately experienced. The discharge soon diminishes, irritation is allayed, the inflammation subsides, ulcerations are made to heal and finally a radical and permanent cure is effected.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of the purest Cocoa, Mr. Eppe has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a weak and nervous system may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. RUSSIA'S CURT REPLY.

Do Giers Refuse to Talk Further About the Penjdeh Incident—Duplicity of Turkey.

(Cable dispatch from London.) The Russian reply to the communication sent to M. de Giers through Sir Edward Thornton yesterday, after a receipt of Sir Peter Lumsden's supplementary report on the battle of March 30, has just been received. M. de Giers replies curtly that Russia declines to enter upon any further discussion of the Penjdeh incident.

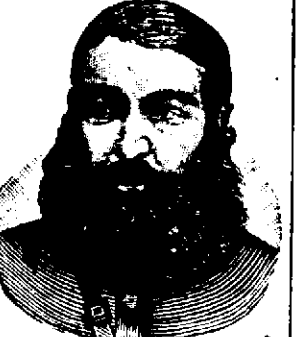

It is reported at St. Petersburg that the general staff are in favor of allowing Gen. Komaroff to act at his own discretion, not even M. de Giers to interfere.

A letter from Baku confirms the first account of the battle of Penjdeh, and states that the Afghan force consisted of 4,000 men. The writer, who had been with Sir Peter Lumsden, but who left him before the battle was fought, states the Russians throughout the winter had been trying to dislodge and irritate the Afghans, and that only Sir Peter Lumsden's influence prevented bloodshed long ago. Col. Akhmedoff advanced to Ak-Tape at about the end of November, before the boundary commission had arrived, and a battle with the Afghans was narrowly avoided. News has also been received that in the battle at Penjdeh the Afghan General was through-out in the fore front of the fighting and was twice wounded. It is reported that Col. Akhmedoff offered a reward of 100 toman (about $200) for the head of either of the British officers with the Afghan force.

A dispatch from Constantinople puts a new light on the diplomatic mission to England of Hassan Fehmi Pasha, the special Turkish Envoy, and Robert Pasha, Marshal of the Turkish Empire. In order to avoid the censorship of press dispatches at Constantinople, this message was sent by mail to Athens and transmitted thence by telegraph to London. It says that the sole mission of Fehmi Pasha, who has been here constantly since January last, was to fool the British Government into a belief that Turkey was disposed to be on friendly terms with England and to seek and follow her advice in all international complications. Robert Pasha, whose former reputation as a gallant admiral of the British navy made him an admirable tool for this purpose, was sent with Fehmi Pasha to strengthen the bluff. Robert Pasha was introduced only with the delivery of certain presents to the Queen and Prince of Wales, accompanied by the customary assurances of distinguished consideration, etc., which may mean a great deal or nothing. All the fine work of diplomatic intrigue was to be done and has been done from first to last by Fehmi Pasha.

ABDURRAHMAN KHAN.

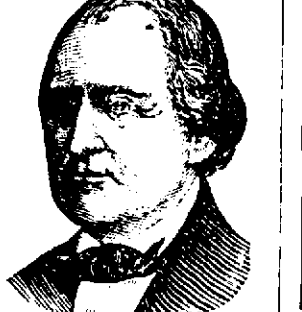

The Amour of Afghanistan.

Amour Abdurrahman Khan was born in 1830. He is the eldest son of Afzal Khan, and is thus a grandson of Nizam Mahomed, who ruled Afghanistan till his death in 1863, and nephew to the late Sher Ali, who was deposed and expelled by the British invasion of 1879, and who died soon afterward in exile. When Sher Ali was recognized by the English, Abdurrahman, who had married a daughter of the Turkish Emperor of Bokhara, took refuge in those countries north of Afghanistan beyond the Oxus, which had then not yet been subjected to Russian control. He was pursued, however, by the persecuting spirit of Sher Ali and Yakoub, who had seized his mother, wife, and sister, and detained them many years prisoner at Candahar, and who compelled the Amour of Bokhara to deny him an abode in that state. Abdurrahman was fain to put himself under the protection of the Russians, then gradually advancing their conquests in Turkistan, and was received by Gen. Kaufmann, who procured him, in his poverty, a Russian pension of 25,000 rubles a year, and afterward permitted him to reside at Samarcand. After numerous intrigues and internal dissensions the throne was again vacated, and the present Amour was chosen in 1880, and has been very substantially supported by the British Government of India, under Lord Ripon, receiving from it a regular subsidy of £160,000 a year, with large gifts of artillery, rifles, and ammunition to improve his military force.

FRANZ ABT.

The Well-Known Musical Composer.

Franz Abt, whose death was recently announced by a cable dispatch, was born in 1819, and was, therefore, 66 years old. His parents intended him for the ministry, but, having a passion for music, he chose that vocation. He was a prolific composer of songs, his compositions being in the number of four and five hundred, the most popular of which is "When the Swallows Homeward Fly."

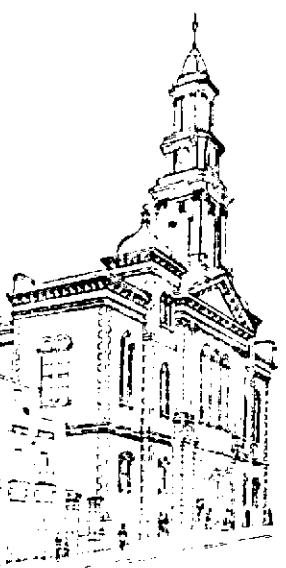

The Rev. Dr. Talmage says he is going to Europe to rest and get acquainted with his family. He has his photographs, but has had no time to get acquainted. It is the first rest he has had in thirty years.

The President's Place of Worship. The church which the president attempts has always been a subject of interest to the public, as is evidenced by the fact that the Jews which last president have appeared are being pointed out to the stranger from year to year, and so will now be in the hands of the church, generations hence, be paid at with curiosity by the visitor to Washington. From the time the president reached Washington there was a rivalry among the various churches to which he would seem him, but the latter, with his characteristic individuality, selected a church from which no invitation had been sent him.

THE NEW YORK AVENUE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The church which is close to the most fashionable of the Presbyterian churches in Washington. It is an imposing building, part of the town, and has been over the past few years. The pastor, the Rev. Byron Sunderland, preached in this church before the war, President Pierce and his wife being regular attendants in those days. The greater portion of the congregation then were Unitarians, who abandoned themselves from it owing to the decided Unitarian views which their pastor maintained. Dr. Sunderland has been chaplain of the senate for many years, but since 1880 has retired from public notice. To the artist who was seeking information before making the sketches from which our engravings are made, Dr. Sunderland wrote: "Hitherto we have been a very retiring people, not at all known to fame nor sought after by the representatives of the press. This sudden notoriety is quite as inexplicable and somewhat annoying to a simple-minded old-fashioned people, who neither expect nor court publicity." If our churches are to prosper and others in time achieve pre-eminence, Sunderland's church is an example of one that has prospered through a simple and unassuming life. The very antiquity of the president's worshiping at this church worked its transformation the first Sunday after he was inaugurated.

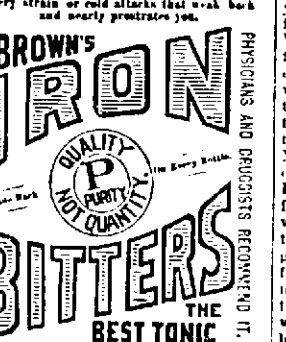

FRANZ ABT. CLEVELAND AT CHURCH.

It was not until several Sundays after his inauguration that the president visited church for the first time. He listened with apparent attention to the rather commonplace sermon of the pastor, the next Sunday. Then, when he had been in perfect peace, he was seated upon the pulpit, because he trusted in God. The result was not successful in securing a increase of Miss Grier, who, with her teeth, looking to the embarrassment of the audience and the confusion of the service, was a part of the program of the church.

Fort Wayne Paint and Color Works,

No. 12 West Columbia Street Fort Wayne, Indiana.

To Painters

And others wanting First-class Paints: Do you know that you have in Fort Wayne a Manufacturer of Mixed Paint and Grinders of Colors, where you can buy your Paints from first hand instead of paying the middle man his profit, which is from 25 to 35 per cent. O. L. STARKEY, the Painter and proprietor of the Fort Wayne Paint and Color Works, came to Fort Wayne in April, 1885, and in identification of one of the old citizens who has helped build up Fort Wayne, and his knowledge of Paints and the composition of pigments to form different shades and tints is well-known to the public, and his long practical experience in painting gives him the knowledge of Paints that a mere dealer cannot have for he does not know anything about Paints, he only buys them sealed up and he cannot tell you what it takes to make this or that shade. All he knows is what the label on the can says. Neither can he tell you shades that will or will not fade. By buying your Paints of O. L. STARKEY you can get all the information you want. I am making Liquid Paints in all shades and colors; also the same shades and colors in paste form, the same thickness as white lead and requires thinning down the same as white lead. In making the different shades my formulas are all registered giving the amount of each color it takes to form certain shades all thoroughly mixed together in the powder mill, then wet down and run through a mixing machine, and from there to the mills where it is all ground together making a pigment that cannot be made by hand. Call or send and get some of my sample cards of colors and tints; also elevations of gable houses colored up with four and five shades, which will give you a good idea how to paint and ornament the outside of your house.

I say again, do not buy of the middle man if you want to save money. I will guarantee my prices and quality of goods with any manufacturer in the United States.

A Few Words in Kindness.

To the Editor of THE SENTINEL: Sir: In last evening's SENTINEL appeared an article headed "A Word in Kindness" and signed "One of the Neighbors." The article was not written by a neighbor; as is evident from the style in which it is written, and is in every respect maliciously false. "The wife and mother" spoken of is a poor, broken hearted woman, who has spent years of unhappiness and misery with a besotted and drunken husband, as everybody knows who at all knows the family. The records of the courts show that he has been guilty of committing assaults upon his wife time and again, and also that he has been punished for beastly intoxication, and when under the influence of liquor abuses his wife and everybody else and only yesterday did he again choke his wife. His attorneys generally, when he is brought into court to answer for his misdeeds, plead for him the want of mental responsibility. In answer to what one neighbor has written the above has been stated, the truth of which can be corroborated by a dozen neighbors. Please publish this in justice to the wife libeled in the "neighbor's" article of yesterday.

A Dozen Neighbors.

The New Telephone Law.

General Thompson, of Chicago, the attorney for the Central Union Telephone company, has been in the state for a day or two, consulting with the officers of the company regarding the new law reducing the telephone rentals from $5 to $3 a month. It has been decided to contest the law on the grounds of alleged unconstitutionality, but the arrangements have not yet been made for bringing a case before the courts. Mr. Thompson said that he had no doubt that the law is unconstitutional, but if the courts held differently it would force the company to close up their exchanges in this state. An exact copy of the law was yesterday introduced in the Illinois legislature by a Chicago representative.

In Search of Heirs.

State Treasurer Cooper has received from H. D. Hufcut, surrogate of Dutchess county, New York, a letter announcing the death of James Whaley, who had property to the amount of nearly $1,000,000. No heirs are to be found at the place of his death, and the heirs who live at Poughkeepsie, New York, have applied for information to Mr. Hufcut, who would be glad to receive further information from any source in regard to other heirs, said to live in Indiana.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are generally a weakness in the back and loins, accompanied by a general feeling of lassitude, and great pain and difficulty in discharging from the bladder. All this is corrected by the use of Mischler's Herb Bitters. Some of the most stubborn cases of gravel have melted promptly, and we have certificates to show that it has been successfully used against diabetes and Bright's Disease.

A Wife's Mortgage Forfeited.

The Indiana supreme court holds in a recent decision pointed by Judge W. G. Colerick, that: "Under section 5119 I. B. 1881, a mortgage executed by a wife on her separate estate to secure her husband's debt is invalid. The mortgagee's belief that her claim was valid against her estate does not amount to a legal claim which her mortgage would undertake to release; nor does her execution of the mortgage, to avoid the threatening litigation against her husband, amount to a consideration passing between her and the mortgagee which will validate the mortgage."

PRESBYTERY PROCEEDINGS.

A Review of the Work of the Fort Wayne Conference at Decatur this Week—The Women's Missionary Society.

The Fort Wayne Presbytery met in the Presbyterian church at Decatur last Monday evening. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. R. S. Goodman, of Kendallville, from the text, "I am crucified with Christ," Gal. 2:20. After the sermon the Lord's supper was administered, the large congregation present remaining to participate in the service. The occasion was very solemn and impressive. After this the Presbytery chose its officers: Rev. T. E. Hughes, of Lagrange, was chosen moderator, and Rev. M. M. Lawson, of Ossian, temporary clerk.

The session of Tuesday was opened with a devotional service of half an hour, after which business was proceeded with. A young man, Mr. Thomas E. Barr, presented himself as a candidate to be licensed by the presbytery to preach the gospel.

The regular routine business of the presbytery was transacted. Statistical reports from the churches were presented and their records were examined.

In the afternoon a children's meeting was held, addressed by Rev. W. F. Johnson, of India, a missionary now temporarily in this country. He greatly interested the little folks present, by his account of the customs of India.

In the evening a meeting was held in the interests of the missions and was addressed by Mr. Johnson. His subject was "The Condition of Women in India." The address was an earnest and stirring one and was greatly enjoyed by those present. A new impulse must be given to missionary work in this presbytery and community by such a meeting. The women's Presbyterian Missionary society also held their regular meeting on Tuesday in the Evangelical church of this city, that place of worship having been kindly placed at their disposal. This was attended by quite a number of delegates from other places and was a profitable and interesting meeting. A commission was to the general assembly: Rev. Thos. J. Hughes, of Lagrange, and Elder Samuel Moses, of this place, were chosen. The assembly is to meet at Cincinnati the 21st day of May, next.

"Neither rhyme nor reason can express how much I value a cure I've found for my weak ankle," she said. "What can it be?" "Fancy a woman never having heard of Salvation Oil at 25 cents a bottle.

A Fair Index of Public Sentiment.

The past week was one of Dr. Nicholls' busiest ones. The Doctor is indeed a success. He surprises his most intimate friends with the quick results that follow his treatment. The Doctor cannot justly be called a specialist, as he treats all chronic diseases of whatever nature. The Doctor is studious, with the same close application as when he first began the practice of medicine, hence his remarkable skill in the treatment of grave cases. Among the many tape-worm cases he had was Rev. Sidney Atherton, living near Fort Wayne, and we cite this patient more for what he stated than for the relief given him in just three hours. He was relieved of a monster tape-worm, 79 feet long, with head complete. He afterward remarked: "Doctor, you certainly are a public benefactor, and Fort Wayne ought to have more such men." The opinion of the divine voices our sentiment and that of hundreds of the Doctor's patients in Fort Wayne. Every man in public life, especially a physician, is a public benefactor; when he is an honest and successful follower of the profession.

THE OLD FELLOWS.

Early History and Progress Since the American and British Councils Initiated the Arrangements for the Anniversary Observation in Fort Wayne.

As early as the eighteenth century there were Odd Fellow organizations in Great Britain and America, all of which were under one head. This united condition existed until 1843, when the organizations became separate in this country and the old. From the American organization since then there have been chapters granted to Odd Fellow organizations in several European countries. At the present time there about 600,000 members to the different lodges in this country. Between the lodges north and south there still remain traces of the division line attributed probably to the war feeling. In the north the north the order has flourished and developed beyond the expectation of all. The Odd Fellows Review says: "Nine southern states—Alabama, Mississippi, Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and Florida—have a total membership of the order of only 10,550. Oddfellowship in the south does not seem to prosper. Texas and Virginia made a fair gain in 1893.

To-morrow occurs the sixty-sixth anniversary of this remarkable order and in his general proclamation for the celebration of that event, Grand Sire Henry F. Gary says: "In accordance with usage and with the resolution of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of 1867, I do hereby enjoin upon all grand and subordinate bodies under the jurisdiction to take steps for the proper observance of our order, on the 26th (or as the 26th will be Sunday, on April 25 or 27, as such bodies may elect,) by setting apart that day to appropriate exercises and thanksgiving and praise to Almighty God for His manifold blessings bestowed upon the membership individually and collectively."

Next Monday the anniversary will be celebrated here. Pratt J. Wise will be master of ceremonies, and Mayor C. A. Zollinger the marshal of the day, assisted by Wm. Halen and Robert Renfrew. The orations will be delivered by Hon. W. R. Myers, of Indianapolis, and Mr. Ench Cox, of this city, past grand masters.

The members of the various lodges are requested to meet at their lodge rooms at 1 o'clock. Following is the order of the days exercises:

MORNING.

Reception in the formation of visiting lodges and members of the order. From 11:00 to 1:00 o'clock dinner will be served to all visiting brothers, also to those living outside the city who belong to the home lodges.

At 1:30 o'clock the different organizations will meet at the hall of Fort Wayne Lodge, No. 14, and the procession will be formed on East Berry street, with the right resting on Calhoun street, in the following order:

1. All Uniform Patria etc as an escort.
2. Sovereign lodge will take position in order of Junior city.
3. Subordinate lodges in order of priority.
4. Speakers and chaplain in carriages.
The marshal and assistants will move the procession promptly at 2 p. m.

making a short march through the principal streets and arriving at the Masonic Temple at 3 p. m.

EVENING.

Order of exercises for the evening, at 7:30 p. m., will be as follows: The members of the order will assemble at the hall of Fort Wayne lodge, No. 14, which will act as an escort to the Masonic Temple, where the ceremonies will be of an informal nature, consisting of short addresses by distinguished visiting brothers; also by the ablest of our home talent, and interspersed by the best instrumental and vocal music.

THE REASON WHY.

The Expression of a Prominent Democrat on the Mayoralty.

To the Editor of THE SENTINEL: Our city government, in the character and fitness of its officials, is of the greatest importance to us. Our property in its just, but not unnecessary taxation; our health, by the enforced cleanliness of our streets and alleys; and our water supply, in its purity, quality and protection; our police, in their temperate and intelligent character, and the required respect and obedience to the laws and to the ordinances of our city by every one within it; all demand that our city government in all its departments should be honest, honorable and beneficial with every interest.

Now we are beginning to talk about candidates for city office and "rings" are beginning to hunt for candidates and candidates are hunting for rings to add them. The great majority of the people are listlessly or indifferently watching to see what is going to be done, and who is going to do it, taking but little, if any part, in any selection of candidates, yet feeling that they must vote for whoever is placed before them; while they will protest that he is unfit for any office.

The democratic party in Fort Wayne is now largely in the ascendant. It can make all the city officials, and it can prove, by its selection of candidates, that it is safe for all our citizens to trust it with that power. My purpose in this communication is only to ask the attention of the democratic party to its candidate for mayor, the chief executive officer of the city. What kind of mayor should the people and the party have?

If we can find a man who was born here, has here grown up to honored manhood, whose business, property, family and friendly interests are all here, who knows the city and all its needs and who would be found true to all, who has no views or offensive habits, who has served the people as councilman for years, intelligently and faithfully, and whose official action was not for sale on any market, who is neither too young nor too old, is vigorous in health and intellect, and is self-respecting, and pleasant in his intercourse with all, and who began to serve the democratic party at the right end of his life—in the beginning.

Wouldn't such a man make a good mayor? for the party? and for the people? That is my opinion, and such a man is now here in the person of Charles F. Muhler.

Don't answer these questions too hurriedly. Yes! "Well, 'tis all true!" "But, but—there's somebody else wants it"—to pay for his becoming a democrat to get it.

The democratic party is always glad to have men come to it, but not solely for the offices within its gift—much of office should not be "too previous" to some service.

As Mr. Muhler is a good man, a respected citizen, why should he not be nominated by the democratic party and elected by the people?

Can any democrat tell the
